

AusCann

Developing solutions for healthcare professionals to optimise cannabinoid-based medicines and treatment outcomes for their patients

Who are we

AusCann is an Australian pharmaceutical company focussed on the development of cannabinoid-based medicines and clinical evidence. AusCann seeks to address unmet medical needs and improve the lives of patients.

What do we do

Engagement

AusCann seeks to partner with health care professionals to develop pharmaceutical solutions and enable feedback from healthcare practitioners and their patients regarding treatment outcome. AusCann seeks to create a differentiated portfolio and to collaborate with healthcare providers to personalise treatment outcomes for their patients.

Education

AusCann is dedicated to the provision of education for all healthcare professionals, to establish the Australian medical community's trust and confidence in cannabinoid-based pharmaceuticals.

Medical Liaison Managers

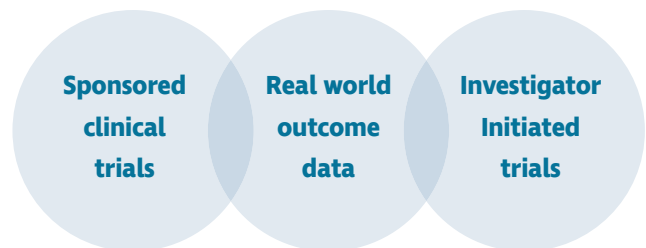

Our qualified and experienced medical liaison team lead engagement programs across Australia to provide support, guidance, and information to medical practitioners.

Part of the Medical Liaison Managers' role is to support Health Care Professionals by responding to medical information requests.

Please contact us via the website to find out how we can tailor education and training for you and your organization.

Research

AusCann places the patient and the physician at the centre of everything we do. The company understands the need for evidence to support the use of cannabinoid-based medicines, and is committed to the generation of clinical evidence, through:
