About Humphrey Law

In 1947 Sidney Humphrey and Albert Law formed a partnership to make socks in Australia. They built a factory on land that had been a lemon orchard in the bush at Heathmont about 25km east of Melbourne. Albert Law's children Rob and Elizabeth now manage the business.

From the beginning, Humphrey Law & Co Pty Ltd aimed to manufacture quality socks providing value for money. This has not changed.

We make the best socks by:

Using the best yarns

Fine Merino wool from Boorowa in NSW, Alpaca from Creswick Spinning Mills and Peru, and Nylon and Mercerised Cotton from reputable suppliers.

Combining (twisting) the yarns

This ensures that each sock style is made with the best yarn combination and with the correct stretch so those socks will keep their shape through many washes.

Knitting with a high stitch density

Which means a more accurate fit and longer life.

Continuous checking of knitting output

To ensure the size of socks remains consistent in length and width.

Dyeing all socks in-house

Using only dyes and chemicals that conform to European standards and lead to cleaner waste water. Because the socks are heated to boiling point during the dyeing process they will not shrink when washed or tumble dried later.

Inspecting every pair of socks

To ensure that only perfect socks leave the factory, and also to allow instant reporting and correcting of any manufacturing faults.

And while making our socks we remain environmentally responsible by:

Reducing water and energy use

Through investment in new more efficient machinery like dyeing machines that use less water, and the use of solar hot water and waste heat recycling.

Minimising waste

So that we do not unnecessarily add to landfill, recycling where possible.

Humphrey Law is the sock specialist

We make socks for many different uses. These include our trade-marked Health Sock® with no tight elastic in the cuff, our Feet First socks for wearing with steel-capped boots, our Grass Seed socks for farmers and carpenters, as well as cycling socks, hiking socks and socks for the Australian Defence Forces.

After 70 years making socks we are grateful for the continued support of those who buy them, knowing they are of high-quality and provide value for money.

We intend to keep making socks here in Australia as long as our customers continue to buy and wear them.

Experience the benefits of Humphrey Law socks

We knit our socks with these natural fibres for ultimate luxury and comfort

Wool

The greatest natural fibre for year-round comfort. Warm in winter, cool in summer, absorbs moisture, breathable, and will not shrink. Our dress socks are made with soft, non-scratch fine 19 micron merino wool.

Cotton

Mercerised cotton is smooth with a silk like lustre and is more abrasion-resistant and absorbent than soft cotton.

Alpaca

Soft and luxurious Alpaca fibre is also supple and smooth, and contains microscopic air pockets which act as insulators that can keep feet warm.

Bamboo-Rayon

Soft, strong, durable and absorbs moisture from the skin.

We embrace the following values

Environmental sustainability

Every second sock we make is made with solar power from the 357 panels on our factory roof. Our socks last longer so use less natural resources.

Ethical Manufacturing

We are annually accredited by Ethical Clothing Australia, which confirms our production is transparent, ethical and legally compliant, and our staff are paid according to, and protected by, industrial law.

100% Australian Made

We have been making our socks entirely in Australia, in the same Melbourne factory since 1947. We proudly supply the Australian Army, Navy and Air Force.

Quality and care

We use the best fibres, knit our socks with care, and individually inspect every sock that leaves our factory.

Sustainability

Humphrey Law embraces the concept of environmental sustainability, that is, taking action that protects the environment through such approaches as using renewable resources and reducing pollution. As it happens we have found, in our seventy plus years of manufacturing that these environmental approaches invariably align with sound business practice.

Most recently we have installed 357 solar panels on the factory roof. These will generate 100 kW of electricity which means that from now on every second sock we make will use electricity direct from the sun.

This adds to our previous sustainability efforts which have included:

Installation of a new state-of –the-art dyeing machine which uses less water, uses less energy, uses less chemicals and reduces our waste.

Replacement of all fluorescent lighting with LED tubes throughout our factory, reducing energy use.

Recycling and repair of the old fluorescent fittings and removal of their ballasts to use for the new LED tubes. The removal of the ballasts improved our Power Factor. (An improved Power Factor means our energy supplier can supply more customers with the same cable size). Our lighting energy use has been decreased by 70% as a result of these two measures.

Installation of separate solar panels to provide hot water for our dyeing machines.

Renovation of our knitting room and installation of a low energy climate control system that works without the need for refrigerated air-conditioning. That in turn reduces knitting room raw material waste by accurately controlling humidity. The use of double glazing, extra insulation and recycling waste heat from another process reduces to zero, our winter heating cost in the knitting room.

This environmentally sensitive project has cut energy costs, reduced waste, and improved product quality.

Re-use of cardboard boxes and plastic yarn cones within the factory, with ultimate disposal with other paper, plastic, glass and metal re-cycling.
