

Biodiversity and nature-based solutions – what is the world growing?

International best practice in the use of nature-based solutions to increase climate resilience and protect biodiversity is developing quickly and challenges how we deliver our transport services. Making space for water, building back better and restoring biodiversity are strong themes after recent weather events. AT is investigating international best practice and how we can use this knowledge to connect the use of nature-based options with emissions reduction and climate resilience..