Nathan Buckley is a Partner at G&B Lawyers, a Sydney city firm offering legal services in property law, corporate law and commercial litigation.

Nathan advises on all legal and regulatory issues and brings a wide range of experience having previously worked as the in-house Senior Legal Counsel at large financial services organisations including Colonial First State Investments (in both Sydney and the United Kingdom), Challenger and the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (the financial services regulator).

Nathan's expertise covers all areas of a transaction including due diligence, structuring, financing options, acquisition and development.

He has a particular interest in drafting and negotiating complex contracts and project documents including joint venture agreements, commercial contracts and establishing investment vehicles, trusts and managed investment schemes.

Nathan also assists clients to establish new businesses in Australia and overseas, to develop financial products and investment funds and to obtain regulatory licences for product issuers, responsible entities and fund managers.

He also acts for clients who make investments in financial services businesses, including through minority shareholding interests and convertible loan arrangements.
