Sponsorship proposal

Health Care in Secure Settings 2022

The Health Care in Secure Settings conference is back in 2022 with Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network bringing together an expert program of speakers and presentations from the niche field of health care in custodial and forensic mental health settings.

The annual conference will be taking place as a hybrid event (accessible in-person and virtually) on Thursday 9 and Friday 10 June 2022 at ICC Sydney. The program, designed for and by health professionals, covers a variety of key issues, innovations, reforms and best practice.

About the host - Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network

The Health Care in Secure Settings conference is hosted by Justice Health and Forensic Mental Health Network (the Network), the largest health care provider to adults and young people in contact with the forensic mental health and criminal justice systems in Australia.

Each year, the Network's staff care for more than 30,000 patients in correctional centres, courts, police cells, youth justice centres, inpatient settings, and in the community. Additionally, the Network cares for 40% of forensic patients in NSW.

The Network provides multidisciplinary health services to patients, including primary care, drug and alcohol, mental health, population health, women's and midwifery care, oral health, Aboriginal health, youth health, and a range of allied health services. The Network also plays a key role in intervention programs to divert people away from custody.
