

About Saving our Species

The Saving our Species program is one of the biggest conservation commitments ever undertaken in NSW. It is a movement involving volunteers, scientists, businesses, community groups and the NSW Government, all coming together to secure the future of Australia's unique plants and animals.

$175 million over 10 years (2016 – 2026) has been invested into Saving our Species and has established the NSW Government as a national leader in threatened species conservation.

The main objectives of the program are to increase the number of threatened species that are secure in the wild in NSW for 100 years and control the key threats facing them.

To find out more about Saving our Species, visit environment.nsw.gov.au/sos and click here to sign-up to our monthly newsletter and find out more about the species we are working to save!