About Brendon Jenkins

Brendon is an experienced NSW Government lawyer and senior executive with specialist expertise in planning and environment, commercial, property and administrative law.

As an experienced public-sector leader, Brendon has built high performing teams of capable staff and has overseen significant team renewal and cultural shift.

He has been the key legal advisor for the Department of Planning and Environment on many significant projects for the NSW Government, including the delivery and implementation of important legislative reforms.

He has also been the key legal advisor to other NSW Government agencies and bodies, including the NSW Land and Housing Corporation, Aboriginal Housing Office, Planning Ministerial Corporation, the National Parks and Wildlife Service, Sydney district and regional planning panels, the Hunter and Central Coast Development Corporation, as well as providing legal support to the Greater Sydney Commission and the Independent Planning Commission.
