

Bruce Cantrill

Special Counsel, New South Wales
Crown Solicitor's Office

Day 2 – Government Solicitors

Panel: Climate law and its impact on government decision making

10:00am – 11:00am

About Bruce Cantrill

Bruce has over 30 years of specialised legal experience in common law and statutory regimes relevant to various tort claims against government. He has advised NSW Government clients extensively on various environmental matters including the potential liability for environmental water management and safety; as well as advising on potential liability, risks and suggested measures to address risk, in relation to climate change. Bruce has also presented in various forums on the legal risk posed to government agencies by climate change and how tort law might be utilised in response to that risk.
