About Alexandra Shields

Alexandra Shields is an employment and labour lawyer based in Sydney, having been with Norton Rose Fullbright since 2007.

Alexandra's expertise are across all areas of employment, workplace relationships and industrial relations law for public and private sector clients, with very strong experience in workplace litigation, including discrimination, sexual harassment and equal opportunity claims, unfair and unlawful dismissals and consumer law claims.

Alexandra has a sound understanding of her clients' businesses and provides a practical and solutions-focussed approach.

With a strong government practice, Alexandra is a trusted advisor to many government agencies on contentious and non-contentious matters, having also spent a substantial amount of time on in-house secondments within various agencies.
