

Otago Global Health Institute 13th Annual Conference

Pre-conference workshop

9am-12pm, Wednesday 11 November 2020, University of Otago, Dunedin

Making connections meaningful: how can Māori values and tikanga inform best practice for global health engagement?

Statement of purpose

To guide the Otago Global Health Institute philosophy and practice on global health engagement through insights from Te Tiriti o Waitangi, and Māori values and tikanga.

Participant profile

Otago Global Health Institute members wishing to participate in determining how Te Tiriti o Waitangi, Māori values and tikanga, can be applied to strengthen OGHl's and their own global health work through positive and more responsible engagement.

Aims of workshop

By the end of the workshop, participants will be aware of:

- What approaches lead to positive global health engagement
- Existing guidance for responsible global health engagement
- How te Tiriti o Waitangi, and Māori values and tikanga, can strengthen connections in global health

Outline of workshop

9.00 – 9.30	Welcome, introductions and mihi Prof Joanne Baxter and Prof John Crump
9.30 - 9.45	A landscape review of existing guidance on best practice in global health engagement Ms Jacqui Hadingham
9.45 – 10.20	Te Tiriti o Waitangi, Māori values and tikanga – exploration of concepts and implications for engagement Prof Joanne Baxter
10.20 - 10.30	Introduction to group work
10.30 - 10.45	Coffee/Tea
10.45 -11.15	Facilitated small group work on application of Te Tiriti principles, values and tikanga to global health engagement All
11.15 -11.30	Feedback from small groups, Prof Joanne Baxter
11.30-12.00	Synthesis, next steps, and wrap up, Prof Joanne Baxter and Dr Patrick Vakaoti