

Neil Montagnana-WallaceDirector and author, Hyphen. Stories, well told

Almost twenty years ago Neil bid goodbye to his corporate career to launch a publishing company, Bounce Books, with his brother-in-law Leonard. Several years later, Neil and his wife Val bought Leonard out and expanded their storytelling offering from coffee-table books to also include films and installations, under a new name: Hyphen. Stories, well told.

So far, Neil has authored almost forty books, and written and produced a full-length documentary as well as eight short films. He ran the business for over a decade and remains a director and Hyphen's in-house writer. Because he hates to be bored, Neil is currently completing a Master of International Relations on the side.