

Arielle Jennings
Recruitment Consultant, Blackman Recruitment

Whilst studying a marketing degree, Arielle worked in various content creation and branding related roles, until her final semester of University where she teamed up with her mum and started a new business venture in recruitment, called Blackman Recruitment.

Outside of her professional career, Arielle was an Australian representative figure skater and now coaches the next generations of local, national, and international level skaters. On top of coaching, she also mentors' university students with career advice.