Sent on behalf of the APSS 2020 Organising Committee:

To APSS 2020 Attendees,

Thank you for registering to attend the Australian Poultry Science Symposium. We’re looking forward to welcoming you to the event next week.

As you may be aware, there have been recorded cases of the Novel Coronavirus (2019-nCov) in Australia and travel restrictions are in place between mainland China and Australia. Please keep in mind that the Australian Government has issued a health alert as a precaution, and all cases of the virus are currently contained. For all updates please consult their website regularly: https://www.health.gov.au/health-topics/novel-coronavirus-2019-ncov

As the event organisers we would like you to consider the below advice:

IMPORTANT NOTICE: regarding Novel Coronavirus (2019-nCoV)

Could all registered delegates of the 2020 Australian Poultry Science Symposium please choose not to attend if you:

- have travelled to mainland China since the 1st of February 2020
- or
- have experienced fever, cough, aches and pains, sore throat or shortness of breath since the 1st of February 2020
- or
- may have come into contact with anyone suspected of suffering from novel Coronavirus.

Your co-operation in this regard would be greatly appreciated in the interest of protecting the health of other delegates. Should you decide not to come for this reason, please contact Claire Fuller to seek a full refund: claire.fuller@sydney.edu.au

If you have any questions or concerns please don’t hesitate to get in touch.

Kind regards,
Judy O’Keeffe | President
Poultry Research Foundation

Julie Roberts | President
