

Orientation to the Canadian Health Workforce Conference

Thursday November 28th 11-12

As has been a tradition in previous Canadian Health Workforce Conferences, we are pleased to hold a hybrid (in person/online) orientation session for new participants to the conference and trainees.

Objectives

This session will provide an overview to the conference and the landscape of health workforce organizations.

Intended Audience

The intended audience for this session includes new attendees to the Canadian Health Workforce Conference and health workforce graduate students and health professional students interested in health workforce research and the landscape of health professional organizations.

Session Format

A short didactic presentation followed by an interactive in-person/online discussion and Q&A session.

Speakers/Discussants

Drs. Sophia Myles and Ivy Lynn Bourgeault of the Canadian Health Workforce Network at the University of Ottawa will co-host this session.

Learning Outcomes

Participants of this orientation will:

- Gain knowledge of the health workforce landscape in Canada and abroad
- Engage in discussion of opportunities to network at the Canadian Health Workforce Conference
- Discuss opportunities for new health workforce research projects/programs
