Mark Howells

Director
Climate Compatible Growth
Programme

Mark Howells holds joint appointments at Loughborough University (LU) and Imperial College, London. Formerly at the Royal Institute of Technology in Sweden, he established their Energy Systems Analysis program. At LU, he serves as the co-director of the STEER Center. Currently, he spearheads the ClimateCompatibleGrowth.com initiative, involving LU, Imperial, OU, KTH, the Climate Parlement, UCL, Oxford, Strathclyde and Cambridge. Howells pioneered premier open-source energy, resource, and spatial planning tools, published in top Nature Journals, and coordinated the European Commission's energy think tank. He's a sought-after expert by the United Nations, contributing significantly to UNDESA's 'Modelling Tools for Sustainable Development Policies' initiative. His work influences IEA, IRENA, ABB, the World Bank, and others. He advises prominent US and European institutes, leveraging his award-winning career with the International Atomic Energy Agency. Howells pursued his graduate and post-graduate studies at the University of Cape Town, South Africa, and engaged with Stanford's Program on Energy and Sustainable Development while representing the World Energy Council's student program.
