WHAT DO YOU SEE?

 @danhaesler

you're not responsible for teaching & learning...

...you're responsible for the people who are responsible for teaching & learning

@danhaesler

Leading Teams

@danhaesler

Are you (really) a team?

@danhaesler

Work groups are characterised by the least amount of interdependence. They are based on organisational or managerial hierarchy. Work groups may meet periodically to hear and share information.

Teams are highly interdependent - they plan work, solve problems, make decisions, and review progress in service of a specific project. Team members need one another to get work done.

What makes for an effective team?

What is your most important non-negotiable?

@danhaesler

Elements of Effective Teams

as identified by Google's Project Aristotle

Psychological Safety

"If I make a mistake on our team, it is not held against me."

Structure & Clarity

"Our team has an effective decision-making process."

Dependability

"When my teammates say they'll do something, they follow through with it."

Impact

"I understand how our team's work contributes to the organisation's goals."

Meaning

"The work I do for our team is meaningful to me."

@danhaesler

Effective teams at Google prioritise these factors in order of importance.

Belonging

Consider...

How do you as a leader impact a teacher's sense of self acceptance and belonging?

To what extent do teachers feel they belong in your school?

Who matters more in your school?

Do some of your teachers think they matter less?

What impact might this have on their sense of belonging?

@danhaesler

Purpose

@danhaesler

Autonom

y

Do they work on their own?

or

Do they own their work?

@danhaesler

Teachers with Autonomy

Own their craft

They trust themselves to either execute what is required or learn how to execute what is required.

Can you think of teachers who don't trust themselves?

As a leader how do you go about helping teachers to trust themselves?

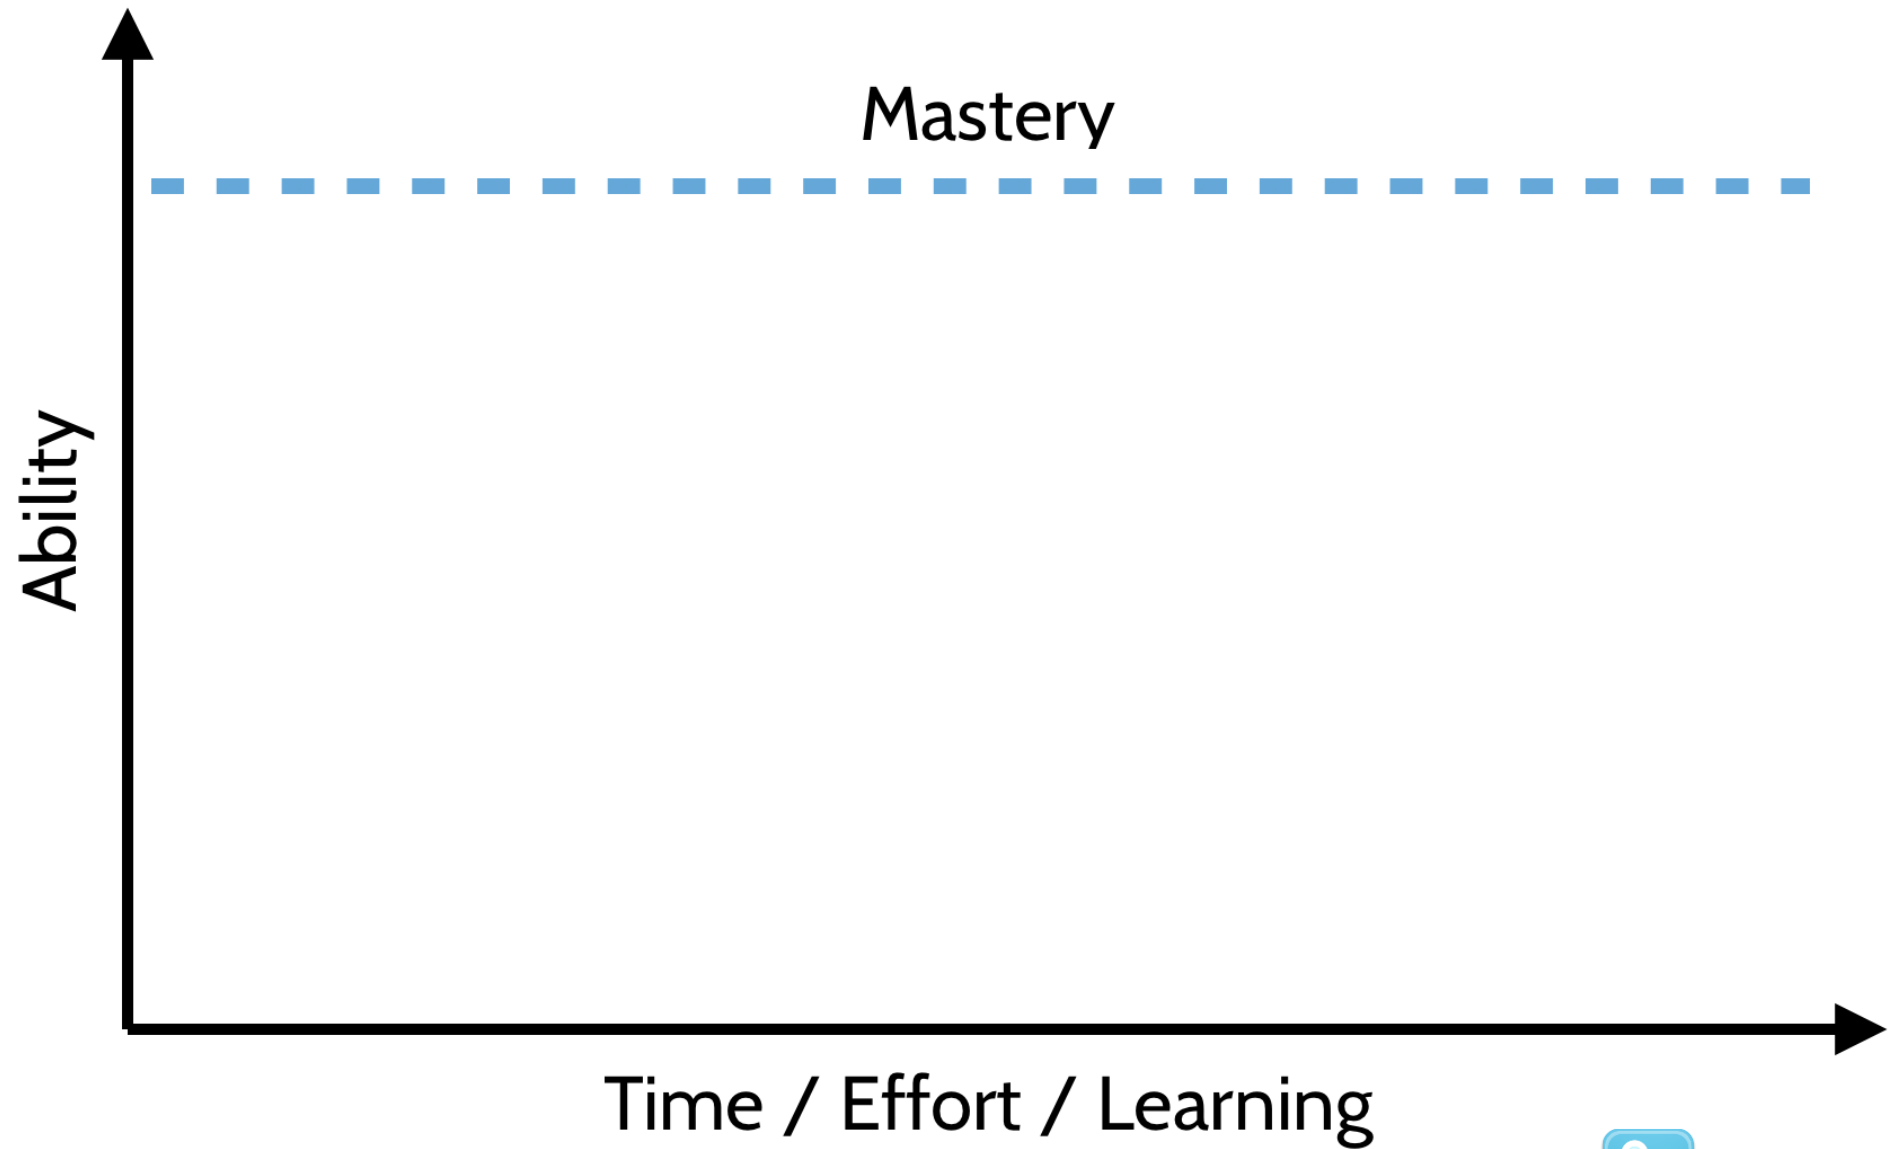

@danhaesler

Mastery

@danhaesler

In a Mastery Mindset or Growth / Learning Mindset
we move from Judgement to Learning

We're interested in results, but we're not overly focused on them.
