

Call for Applications – Virtual ISPP Academy 2024

6 December 2024 (Virtual)

Deadline for applications: 1 October 2024

Explore Foundational and Cutting-Edge Research in Political Psychology

What is the Virtual ISPP Academy?

The ISPP Virtual Academy is an extension of the ISPP Academy, which has been held annually since 2011. It connects early career scholars and professionals interested in political psychology with leading experts in the field.

The virtual format increases access to valuable content, especially for those who face barriers to in-person attendance due to financial constraints, caregiving responsibilities, and other challenges.

What the Virtual Academy Offers:

- Access to recorded lectures and reading materials on various topics in political psychology,
- A one-day virtual event with opportunities for live discussions and interactions with instructors. Confirmed instructors include:
 - Kevin Durrheim (University of Johannesburg)
 - Ana Figueiredo (University of O'Higgins)
 - Leonie Huddy (Stony Brook University)
 - Yasin Koc (University of Groningen)
 - Joanne Miller (University of Delaware)
 - Felicia Pratto (University of Connecticut)
 - David Redlawsk (University of Delaware)
 - André Sales (Sao Paulo Pontifical Catholic University)
 - Nicholas Valentino (University of Michigan)
- Professional development sessions led by leading scholars in political psychology (Names to be confirmed)
- Opportunities to present your work in blitz presentation sessions and interact with fellow participants.
