

Dietetics capacity and practice in Africa: An analysis of the state of affairs

Prof Richmond Aryeetey

University of Ghana (Ghana)

Prof Richmond Aryeetey is an Associate Professor at the University of Ghana. He obtained his B.Sc. and M.P.H. from the University of Ghana, and his Ph.D. from Iowa State University. Prof. Aryeetey's research is in maternal and child health and nutrition, and include mapping the social determinants of sub-optimal diet among women and young children; food security, food systems, and food environments; and breastfeeding policy and program implementation.

Dr Matilda Asante

University of Ghana (Ghana)

Matilda Asante is a Senior lecturer and the Head of the Department of Dietetics, University of Ghana. She holds a Ph.D. from Kings College London and a B.Sc. from University of Ghana. Prior to her appointment in the university; she worked as a registered dietician at a hospital in Ghana. Her research interests include dietetics practice, culinary nutrition, food consumption patterns and chronic lifestyle diseases. She serves as an examiner for the Allied Health Professions Council in Ghana

Dr. Bernadette Chimera-Khombe

Dr. Bernadette Chimera-Khombe is the Clinical Coordinator for the Feed the Future innovation for Nutrition and USAID supported, collaborative postgraduate Clinical Dietetics program at Lilongwe University of Agriculture and College of Medicine, Malawi. Dr. Chimera-Khombe is a medical doctor whose career focus is in clinical nutrition practice and research. She holds a degree in medicine and has acquired postgraduate training in clinical and public health nutrition and epidemiology, with over 5 years of clinical experience in public service health care in Malawi. Dr. Chimera-Khombe has played a pivotal role in the genesis of dietetics practice in Malawi through the formulation of course content, stakeholder engagement and establishing local clinical training/practice structures for the clinical dietetics programme in Malawi.