

Sónia Mocumbi a native of Mozambique, settled since 1991 in Switzerland where she finished high school. She holds a Degree in Geography and Anthropology (2001, University of Neuchâtel, Faculty of Arts and Human Sciences Switzerland), and a Master's degree in International Cooperation and Development Aid, from the Complutense Institute of International Studies, ICEI (2003, Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain).

In 2010, She joined the Institute for Global Health of Barcelona (ISGlobal) where she was part of the Policy and Advocacy team as Program Officer.

In that capacity, she liaises with multiple stakeholders including government officials, CSOs, research, academia and international organizations. During this period he collaborated with the Manhica Foundation in Mozambique and in 2014, she moved to Mozambique and participated in the establishment of the Advocacy and Institutional Relations Unit at the Manhica Health Research Centre. She is currently in charge of the Inter-Institutional Relations, Advocacy and Communication Unit.