

Social Psychology Section Annual Conference 2021

the british psychological society

Congratulations on having your abstract accepted for a poster presentation at the Social Psychology Section Annual Conference in August. Please take the time to look at the oral presentation guidance below.

Firstly, don't forget to register for the event! You can register here www.delegate-reg.co.uk/sps2021/registration.

Your Presentation

Posters will be displayed as static content for the duration of the event for delegates to download and read at their leisure. There will also be a Poster Q&A session during the programme for poster presenters to answer questions about their research. Your attendance is required at your allocated presenting day, please refer to the to the programme which is available on the event website for your presenting day.

Quick tip: Please make sure you save your presentation and poster with your name as the title.

Creating your content

When creating your poster and presentation, please be mindful to take steps that will ensure your content is accessible to all, these include but not limited to;

- Keeping bullet points to a minimum and concise
- Use a legible font and size. Please avoid using Serif fonts, where possible
- Avoid colour combinations that others may struggle to distinguish between, e.g. red and green, green and brown, green and blue etc.
- Landscape formats display best on a virtual platform
- There are various software programs available to create your poster, e.g. MS Publisher, MS PowerPoint
- Be mindful that your organisation/institution may have their own brand guidelines you need to follow. Please consult with your colleagues for further details

Sending your poster

Please send a PDF version of your poster to sps@kc-jones.co.uk by Monday 16th August 2021. We will also be making all posters available for delegates to download after the event has taken place. If you do not want your poster to be shared, please let us know when sending your presentation.

The online platform

The event will be taking place on a platform called OnAIR. More information on how to access the portal will be shared with you nearer to the event.

Presenter demonstration

We will be providing a presenter demonstration to allow you to familiarise yourself with the platform ahead of your session and ease any concerns you may have.
