

Dr. Kentse Mpolokeng is an Anatomy lecturer at the University of Cape Town, in the Department of Human Biology which she joined in 2016 as part of the new Generation of Academics Programme (nGAP) since its inception. She teaches human anatomy to the undergraduate students in the health sciences programmes and also supervises postgraduate anatomy projects at Honours and Masters level. She joined the Anatomical Society of Southern Africa (ASSA) in 2016 and has been an active ordinary member up till now. Her research interests include vascular anatomy, human anatomical variations, medical education and anatomy imaging.