

Dr. Pamela Pillay [B Med Sci; B Med Sci Hons; M Med Sci (cum laude); UEIP; PhD] is an early career academic in the Department of Clinical Anatomy. She is the Academic Leader: Teaching and Learning in the School of Laboratory Medicine and Medical Sciences, CHS at UKZN. She serves as a Council member of the Anatomical Society of Southern Africa and as a UKZN Biomedical Research Ethics Committee member. Her research niche focuses on ethical frameworks that will guide research involving human remains (ie. cadavers; skeletal remains and fetal material), anatomical variations and Anatomy/Medical Education.