

The Association for Radiation Research

Monday 24th - Wednesday 26th June 2024
Edgbaston Park Hotel, University of Birmingham, UK

Sponsorship Brochure

We are very pleased to invite you to the Association for Radiation Research (ARR) meeting for 2024 at the University of Birmingham. The meeting will cover a whole breadth of topics related to radiation research and will provide a fantastic platform for interdisciplinary learning and development of collaborations with the radiation research community in the UK.

We will have exciting talks from both national and international experts in the field, as well as opportunities for early career researchers to present through talks and posters. There will be great opportunities to network between up to 150 junior and senior researchers, and to provide an inclusive interdisciplinary environment enabling the exchange of results and new ideas through social events, including the conference dinner.

The sponsor stands will be prominently displayed in the exhibition area of the conference facilities. This area will include the registration area, the poster displays and where refreshments and lunch will be served throughout each day.

We hope to see you in Birmingham and look forward to a very exciting meeting!

About the venue

We look forward to welcoming you to the Edgbaston Campus of the University of Birmingham in the UK. Attendees will have the option to book accommodation at the Edgbaston Park Hotel situated by the campus ensuring ample opportunities for interaction. Birmingham is the cradle of the industrial revolution, crisscrossed with canals. Its vibrant city centre is close to the campus, while the historical tourist sites of Stratford upon Avon and Ironbridge are a short distance away. Birmingham has easy access: Birmingham International airport is half an hour from the city centre and if coming by train from Europe via the Eurostar/Shuttle, Birmingham is only a further hour and a half away.
